THE NEXT SENATE.

How it will be Constituted Politically. A PROBABILITY THAT WHEN IT CONVENES IN SPECIAL SESSION IN MARCH, 1889, IT WILL CONTAIN AN EQUAL NUMBER OF REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS, AND THE NEW VICE-PRESIDENT'S VOTE WILL BE REQUIRED TO DECIDE THE PATE OF STRICT

In accordance with the usual custom, the Sen.

ate will of course be convened in special session early next March, immediately following the expiration of the present Congress. No matter how the presidential election may result this special session will be necessary. Should President Cleveland be re-elected his Cabinet must be re-appointed, and should General must be re-appointed, and should General Harrison win, the Senate will be called together to assist him in organizing his administration. If the republicans elect their presidential ticket, they will almost certainly control the Senate; if they lose the presidential election, they are likely to lose the Senate, At all events the next Senate will be very nearly equally divided politically. The terms of twenty-six Senators-thirteen democrats and thirteen republicans, will expire on the 3d of next March. Of the outgoing democrats eleven are from southern states, one from Delaware, a state as reliably democratic as any are from southern states, one from Delaware, a state as reliably democratic as any in the south, and one from New Jersey. The latter is the only state that can be considered doubtful in the list that must choose successors to democrats. Already the democrats have gained one Senator from the republicans. They have chosen Mr. Barbour to succeed Mr. Riddleberger from Virginia. Therefore, unless some unexpected and remarkable political revolution should occur within the choose successors to democrats. Already the democrats have gained one Senator from the republicans. They have chosen Mr. Barbour to succeed Mr. Riddleberger from Virginia. Therefore, unless some unexpected and remarkable political revolution should occur within the South between now and November—an occurrence that nobody with an atom of political sense anticipates—the democrats are sure to hold their own in the next Senate. If they retain New Jersey they will divide the Senate equally with the republicans, assuming that the latter suffer no jurther losses; and the political status of the states to choose successors to outgoing republicans makes it quite as certain that they will remain faithful to prevent party affiliations as the southern states are to remain democratic. If, then, New Jersey elects a democratic legislature, the political control of the next Senators whose terms are now drawing to a close, Messrs. Beck (Ky.), Gibson (La.), and Walthall (Miss.) have been re-elected, and the indications are that Messrs. Berry, Saulstoury, Morgan, Coiquitt, Ranson, Butler, Harris, Coke, and Kenna will be their own successors.

SENATOR HARRIS HOLD ON TENNESSEE.

In Tennessee there are several democratic as the surpressed by the loss of the Illinois locations.

SENATOR HARRIS' HOLD ON TENNESSEE. In Tennessee there are several democratic aspirants for Senator Harris' seat, but the most reliable information from the state is that he cannot be beaten. One of the political characteristics of the South is to retain her strong men in place. It was this policy that largely contributed to the political power of that section in national affairs prior to the war of the rebellion. There is no man of the South prominently identified with the of the South prominently identified with the stirring history of that, section for the past generation who has a stronger hold upon the regard of the predominating political element of his state than Senator Harris, He was governor of Tennessee at the outbreak of the war, and promptly took sides with the South. After the war he was sent to the Senater He was returned to the Senater without onco. ate. He was returned to the Senate without oppo-sition, and now, at the expiration of his second term, has the cordial support of about a fluential democratic papers and leaders. ort of about all the in-

Senator Berry, of Arkansas, came into the Senate as the first men in the Senate. Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, is approaching the end of his second term. He, too, is quite sure of re-election, and, it is said, without opposition of re-election, and, it is said, without opposition of re-election.

> GEORGIA'S PROBIBITION SENATOR. Senator Colquitt stepped from the gubernatorial chair of Georgia to a seat in the Senate. He is not much of a politician in the usual acceptation of that term, but is known and recognized as an upright Christian gentleman. He is a firm believer in orthodox Christianity, and is not afraid to stand before any audience and assert his convictions. He is also an ardent prohibitionist. His bold advocacy of religious and moral questions has made him strong enemies and it is understood that the succession will be disputed with him. He was a major-general in the Confederate army. His determined attitude has made for him firm and aggressive friends as well as enemies, and if he determines that he would like another term in the Senate it will take a strong man to beat him.

BECK, GIBSON AND WALTHALL Senator Beck, of Kentucky, has already been re-elected, and it, at the expiration of his coming now—and he has a physique that bids defiance to time—he shall say that he wants to remain in the time—he shall say that he wants to remain in the Senate, the people of Kentucky will probably renew his commission.

Senator Gibson has just been re-elected by acciamation, notwithstanding the bitter factional strife within his party in Louisiana. He was chosen by his people to five successive Congresses, and was, while serving in the House, elected to the Senate. He has never yet had any opposition that was capable of making itself felt for any public position in the gift of the people of Louisiana.

Gen. Walthall has also been re-elected from Secretary, now Justice Lamar. He, too, was a Confederate major-general. The appreciation in which he is held by the people of his state was evinced by his recent renomination by acclamation. Gen. Walthall's unselfish devotion to his friend, Justice Lamar, kept him from public honors that he might have had for some years. He wanted to see his friend advanced and as they both lived in the same section of the state, Walthall declared that he preferred private life to public honor. He positively declined every offer of preferment that might possibly bring him in competition with his friend until the latter was beyond the reach of rivalry; then Gen. Walthall consented to accept a seat in the Senate.

M'PHERSON'S POSITION. essively to represent the state of New Jersey in the senate and may be again, but he does not thrust his candidacy to the front now. He does not regard this as a time for the assertion of per-sonal ambition or preferences, but wants to win the pending important fight for his party and let the question of preference as between democrats be determined afterward. It is not unlikely that, he may express a preference to retire from public life and devote his energy and ability to private business. It is in his state that the democrats

"MATT" RANSOM SURE OF HIS SEAT.

BUTLER AND COKE.

Senator Butler will probably be returned from South Carolina without opposition. He was the first choice of the democrats of his state for Senator, after the restoration of the franchise to the seceding whitea. He was re-elected by acclamation and will, in all probability, be returned again without opposition if he shall decide to continue in public life.

Senator Coke, another of the veteran democratic Senator Coke, another of the veteran democratic benators, nearly six years ago was re-elected by the people of Texas unanimously. He has the enormous majority of the banner democratic state behing him. He was twice elected governor of Texas, the second time by a majority more than double that polled on the first occasion. In fact it was largely due to his influence that Texas won the distinction of being the banner state in the democratic column, and the indications are that he will enter upon another term at the unanimorequest of his party.

TOUNG BUT INFLUENTIAL.

Senator Kenna, one of the youngest members of the most dignified legislative body in the universe, has enjoyed the most rapid political promoverse, has enjoyed the most rapid political promotion of any man of his years now in the public service. When scarcely more than "of age" he was elected prosecuting attorney of his native county, in West Virginia. Several years faithful and efficient service in that capacity elevated him, by the popular will, to the honorable and responsible post of circuit judge. He entered the House of the Forty-fifth Congress with the appearance of a boy in years, but before the end of his first term he had won the esteem and confidence of such men as the then Speaker Randall. He was reelected successively to the Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Congresses, but with his commission to the last named was elected to the Senate, entering there as the youngest member of that body and one of the youngest who had in the history of the country been so honored. He is secretary of the democratic senatorial caucus and chairman and manager of the democratic congressional committee. The latter position, one of great responsibility, was imposed upon him by the unanimous voice of his party, because of the signal ability and the wise political discretion he displayed as manager of the last congressional canvass, and the successful termination of his labors. It is scarcely necessary to state that there is no opposition, worth speaking of, in West Virginia, to Senator Kenna's re-election.

Sowen Likely To COME BACK.

BOWEN LIKELY TO COME BACK. Of the out-going republicans the first state in the list, alphabetically, is that of Colorado, and Senator Bowen, or "Tom Bowen," as he is famil-should be surpressed by the loss of the Illinois legislature. He is very popular with his party in his state, and is often likened to Abraham Lincoln. He is the author of the interstate commerce law. Senator Wilson, of Iowa, is secure for the next six years, having been elected as his own successor. He is considered one of the best lawyers of the republican side, and if his party shail retain control of the Senate he will be given a position of promitteness. rominence. Senator Plumb has served nearly twelve years in

Senator Plumb has served nearly twelve years in the Upper House of Congress, and no member has done more work or accomplished greater results. He is full of energy, and when he undertakes a task it must be pushed to consummation. He is chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, and through his agency and influence a great deal of legislation beneficial to settlers and Western people generally has been enacted. He will undoubtedly be returned, perhaps without opposition. TWO NEW ENGLAND SENATORS. Senator Frye will, of course, be his own successor. That goes without saying. He is as secure as if already re-elected. Senator Frye entered the SENATOR PALMER'S PROBABLE SUCCESSO

Senator Palmer, of Michigan, has decided not to be a candidate for re-election, preferring the quiet and comfort of private life to the honors of quiet and comfort of private life to the honors of public place. He is wealthy and can afford to indulge his preferences. It is understood that his chief reason for abandoning public position is that his wife is an invalid and he wants to devote his time and attention to her without incurring censure for neglect of duty. Mr. McMillan, a wealthy business man of Detroit, is named as Senator Palmer's probable successor. The democrats entertain some hope of capturing the Michigan legislature and a Senator, but the republicans declare they are in no danger. Senator Palmer's successor will, in all probability, be a republican. SABIN AND MANDERSON.

Senator Sabin, of Minnesota, will be in the field rants for his place among the republican leaders of Minnesota, his friends believe he will win. Mr. Sabin is personally one of the most popular men in the Senate. He has as many friends on the democratic as on the republican side. He has no great fondness for the routine details of legislation, nor does he like to make speeches, though in social conversation he is an A1 talker.

Senator Manderson, of Nebraska, will no doubt succeed himself. He is near the end of his first term, but he is deservedly ranked among the strongest of the republican side. He is systematic in everything, and is equally efficient in the committee room or on the hoor.

CHANDLER, DOLPH, CHASE, AND RIDDLEBERGER.
Senator Chandler, of New Hampshire, has been

Senator Chandler, of New Hampshire, has been in the Senate only a little more than a year, but he has been conspicuous in public life for years. He was elected in 1887 to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Pike, who died. They are so full of political fight in New Hampshire that he will scarcely come back without a scramble.

Senator Dolph, of Oregon, though not yet reelected, may feel quite secure. His state has elected a republican legislature. There may be a contest for the place, but as Mr. Dolph has made en excellent Senator and has faithfully served his state he will probably be returned.

Senator Chase, of Rhode Island, has been reelected. lected. Senator Riddleber, of Virginia, ends his senatorial term on the 31 of next March, and a demo-crat has been chosen as his successor. It is un-derstood that Mr. Riddleberger contemplates run-ning for the lower house from his district.

NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE. Representative Candler, from the House con mittee on education, has reported to the House the bill to establish a national industrial institute in the District of Columbia.

Capitol Topics. RAILROAD PROFIT SHARING. At a special meeting of the Senate committee o labor and education yesterday to consider railway profit sharing, George May Powell, of Philadelphia president of the Arbitration Council, was given a hearing. He presented the system in successful use for over a generation on the railways of France, and said that the Arbitration Council Grance, and said that the Arbitration Council called attention of American railways to the French system in October, 1886. January 1, 1887, he said, the Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Michigan road adopted a modification of the French plan, and the road reported January 1, 1888, that the experiment of the year had been exceptionally successful financially, and that not a life of a passenger or employe had been lost, nor had any serious accident occurred in that time. Mr. Powell suggested some improvements on the plan as used the last year on the Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Michigan Railroad. He said the subject was given a fuller presentation by the council in a paper read at the Social Science Congress at Saratoga, N. Y., September 9, 1887. In July, 1888, the council had issued a special manifesto on profit sharing to the leading railways of North America. He was sure there was greater peace and prosperity for railway stockholders and employes, and safety for passengers and freight in transit, through wisely managed profit sharing than without it.

Neither House of Congress was in session to-day. Senators Allison and Hiscock, of the sub-finance committee, were together to-day conferring on the tariff. Senator Aldrich has not returned. The Political Outlook in Michigan.

The Question Again Under Disc in the English Papers. Special Cable Dispatch to THE EVENING STAR.

LONDON, August 4.—The question of Washingon's pedigree again crops up, the Standard having opened its columns to correspondence on the oject. An anonymous writer says he spent several years in almost daily intercourse with Col. Chester, and is, therefore, able to state confidently sidered quite a swell. that his final opinion was that the home of the Washington family would turn out to have been in the North Lancashire or Westmoreland district. In confirmation of the Chester theory the writer says Washington's paternal grandmother, when, she came to this country, settled at Whitehaven, where she was buried January 30, 1701. Another correspondent named Scothburn says it is not unlikely that John Washington was born at South Cave. He gives some genealogical particulars, which, however, neither confirm nor disprove the statement.

A DETROIT SWELL IN TROUBLE.

Accused of Forging His Uncle's Name to Mortgages on which He Got Money. DETROIT, MICH., August 4.—An attorney of this city, while looking up the records of the register of deeds' office, noticed a mortgage of $10,000, given by Edmund R. Kearsley, formerly of this city, but now of Bucyrus, Ohio, to Mrs. Nellie Avery, of Chicago. Knowing that Mr. Kearsley is wealthy—he is said to be worth about haif a million—he reported the matter to Hon. D. Bethune Duffield, who has charge of Mr. Kearsley's interests in this city. Investigation revealed that more mortgages were recorded, purporting to have been given by Mr. Kearsley, one of $3,000 to the Wayne County savings Bank, and one of $4,000 to the Detroit Savings Bank, and one of $4,000 to the Detroit Savings Bank, and one telegraphed to Mr. Kearsley, who wired back that his signature to these mortgages were torgeffes. Further investigation showed that Howard W. Sterling, a nephew of Mr. Kearsley, had obtained the money on those mortgages. It was also found that Sterling had obtained $1,250 from the Detroit Savings Bank and $3,000 from the Wayne County Savings Bank on notes which purport to have been signed by Mr. Kearsley. Three More Burned Bodies Taken from the Ruins this Morning.

New York, August 4 .- The firemen at work is ered another body, that of a woman probably Minnie Meyersen, a tailoress of 11 Ludiow street, in the ruins of the burned buildings. It was found down on the ground floor under a heap of burned rubbish where it had been overlooked last night. The flesh was burned to a crisp, and the identity can be at best only guessed at. It was reported later that two more bodies, apparently of men, had been dug out, making twenty dead in all and that the search is ended. All that were in the ruins have now been found.

mistaken for a roll of burned cloth. The three bodies were removed to the morgue. The police guarded the ruins to-day and kept back the curious crowds. Abraham Stern, the owner of the burned building, will bury the dead at his own expense. Inquiries were made of the police this morning for Abraham Schneider and Reuben Levine, who are missing. Both men worked in the building and are supposed to be among the unrecognized dead.

One of the bodies taken from the ruins this morning was identified later as that of Mrs. Adele Grutt. Sarah Blum, another of the victual of the fire, died this morning in Believue Hospital. She was twenty-one years old, and a native of Poland. That makes seventeen bodies now in the norque. They are: Morris Schwartz, thirty-six, a tailor; Abraham Scheider, thirty-two; Henry Padrical, twenty-two; Adele Gruft and her two children, Joseph, aged seven, and Cecilia, aged four, and Sarah Bium. Ten bodies remain unidentified. But later one of these was recognized as that of Jacob Feinberg, aged thirty-seven, a buttonhole maker, of 23 Forsyth street, Michael Rubinoff, Philip Tarion and Bernard Rothman, other victims, who are confined in Believue Hospital, will recover. About noon the dead wagon arrived at the morrue with another unrecognized body—
